DEFENSE WINS

er Trial-Revolvers Are Indentified.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 27 .- The ninth day of the Cooper-Sharp trial for the slaying of Former United States Senator E. W. Carmack was marked by lengthy and bitter argument between opposing counsel, and closed with a decided advantage for the defense. At the same time an interesting law point, one lawyers say never before was raised in Tennessee, was denied by Judge Hart.

The defense early in its case-inchief offered proof that Colonel Cooper was told by Edward Craig, whom the colonel had sent to see Senator Carmack, that Carmack was in an 'ngly humor." The defense's case was based really upon this one expression, for Colonel Cooper and Robin both testified that they armed themselves because they were led to believe from this remark that Senator Carmack might assault the elder

Now along comes the state and offers to prove by two of the defense's own witnesses, Major Vertrees and Assistant State Insurance Commissioner T. Leigh Thompson, that Senator Carmack was not only not in an ugly humor but laughed at the idea of trouble, and said he simply wanted to arm himself to relieve the anxiety of his friends.

The defense fought the admission of this testimony with more vim and bitterness than has characterized any argument since the trial began. Learned counsel offered two reasons why it should be excluded: First, that the state could cross-examine only on such matter as had been gone over in direct examination. The court promptly rejected this theory. Next, the defense argued that unless all the conversation of witnesses with Carmack as well as their observations of his manner and appearance had been communicated to the defendants, the testimony was inadmissible. They held that if these conversations and observations had been so communicated to the defendants they would show upon the mental condition of FARMER CAPTURES the defendants; if they were not comthe defendants; if they were not communicated they would show only Senator Carmack's mental condition, and as the senator was dead, his mental condition would throw no light upon the subject.

In the question of Major Vertrees' testimony, Judge Hart excluded the jury and permitted the state to examine the major for the court's benefit. He admitted all that the state said he would, that Carmack laughed

Important Testimony Barred in Coop- Hey York Papers Misinterpret Tariff Views-He Wants Quick Revision.

> New York, Feb. 27 .- President-elect Taft made a vigorous protest against what he said was an absolute misrepresentation in certain New York newspapers as to what he had said in arguing questions regarding tariff re-

He had stated, he said, that the present business depression was undoubtedly due in a large measure to the fact that the tariff is to be revised at an extra session of congress to meet March 15; that it was of the hignest importance that this work of revision should not be delayed, but executed with all diligence.

Mr. Taft also said he favored the idea of a permanent tariff commission, the plan for which should be worked out with deliberation, the duties of such a commission to be to make a careful study of the operation of the proposed new tariff law, to the end that suggestions might be made in the future which would tend to place the whole question of the tariff on a more certain and scientific basis. Upon this statement Mr. Taft was made to say that the present tariff schedules were responsible for the present business depression, and that when they were revised their own parents would not know them, all of which was amplified at length and made positive by appearing to be a vigorous and enthusiastic statement.

Mr. Taft was particularly perturbed over what he called a misrepresentation, particularly in view of the weight which is now given his words because of his official position. He had, he declared, changed his position in no way, and held the same views he had publicly announced during and since the campaign.

The subject of the tariff came up because of a call on Mr. Taft by J. W. Van Cleave, president of the National Manufacturers' association, inwhich the subject of a tariff commission was mentioned.

Lesson IX.—First Quarter, For Feb. 28, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts viii, 4-25. Memory Verses 14, 15—Golden Text, Acts viii, 6-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.] The parting commission of our Lord was to go into all the world and give the good news to every creature, those thus going being assured of His presence with them all the days until the end of the age, and the special enduement of the Holy Spin was to the end that they might be witnesses unto Christ not only in Jerusalem and Judea and Samaria, but unto the uttermost part of the earth (Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Mark xvi, 15; Acts i, 8). Lest the apostles might think that they alone were the ones to do this God seems to have overruled even such a seemingly grievous thing as the murmuring of the Grecians to bring forth other than the apostles and send them forth-humble men who were willing to serve on a committee to supervise the distribution of alms and yet men full of wisdom and faith and of the Holy Spirit, for we cannot truly serve God even in the lowliest office except by the Holy Spirit. In our last lesson we saw the first of the seven most highly honored of God not only as a witness, but as a martyr, sealing his testimony with his blood. In today's lesson we see the second of the seven, Philip, so preaching Christ in Samaria that the people with one accord gave heed unto his message, and there was great joy in that city (verses 5-8). The Lord also wrought miracles of healing through Philip, for the lame and the palsied were made whole, and demons were cast out of those possessed by them.

When we see men like Stephen and Philip thus used by the Holy Spirit and consider that even the apostles were accounted as unlearned and ignorant men and when we hear Paul, who had some learning, having been taught by Gamaliel, renouncing all encross of Christ should be made of none effect (I Cor. i, 17; ii, 4), we cannot but wonder if there is anything of God in the long years of preparation which are thought to be necessary to fit men to be preachers or missionaries. Then when we consider the discourses of Peter and Stephen and Paul in Acts ii. vii and xiii and see them to consist largely of quotations from the Scriptures centering upon a crucified and risen and returning Christ we cannot has been sent to do, is not the one ing to the manufacturing towns afand the one essential for minister or missionary to be filled with the word of God and the Spirit of God? It certainly does seem so to us.

In Simon the Sorcerer we see the contrast to such as Stephen and Philip, for while they magnified the Lord Jesus he gave out that himself was and all values for miles surroundsome great one (verse 9), like Thendas, who boasted himself to be somebody (Acts v. 36). This is the spirit of him who will yet exalt himself above all that is called God and will attempt to show himself to be God (II Thess. ii, 4). All the world will wonder at him and will worship him and the dragon livelihood. In cities and towns there who will give him his power, all except those whose names are in the Lamb's book of life (Rev. xiff, 3, 8). We need not wonder, therefore, that all the people in Samaria for a time gave heed to Simon the Sorcerer. See the multitudes who today are bewitched and deluded by the many strange doctrines which are being taught, and the reason is simply stated in II Thess. ii, 10, 11, for we have foreshadowings of the last days. It is a fearful thing to turn away from anything that God has written by His Spirit, but human nature seems prone to listen to the devil rather than to God, yet God is not discouraged, and there is no reason for us to be. The kingdom will come, and the name of Jesus Christ will be honored in all the world. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will bring it to pass (Rev. xi, 15; Ps. Ixxii, 11; Isa, xiii, 4; ix, 6, 7). When rejoicing on the part of many that such a one should have come also, but not all professors are real possessors, and in one place we read that our Lord Jesus did not believe in all who professed to believe in Him, for He knew what was in man (John ii, 23-25) The special gift of the Holy Spirit granted to these believers through Peter and John, who had been sent up from Jerusalem, stirred Simon to desire the power of communicating this gift, and for it he offered to pay, not understanding the freeness of the redemption that is in Christ and all that was not right with God, and in this be had neither part nor lot (verse 21). sibly that he was not truly saved, and verse 24 may merely show a fear of some judgment that might come upon Substantially one-third of the en him from the Lord. After such truths as are set forth in I Cor. iff, 15; v. 5. and the testimony of Peter that Lot was a righteous man it does not seem becoming in us to judge any one but surselves (Rom. xiv. 13; I Cor. iv. 5).

It is ours to procisim the word of the Lord concerning Jesus Christ and His sufferings and glory in full confidence that "no word of God is void of pow-

There is much to interest the stu- years. dent in economy in the bulletins issued by the government relative to the results of the census of manufactures for the year 1905, and in the reports of the department of labor and commerce pertaining to industry and manufactures.

In 1905 there were 216,262 manufacturing establishments in the United States. In these establishments $12,686,265,673 capital was employed, and work given to 5,470,321 wage-earners. To these wage-earners were paid for the year $2,611,540,532, and the value of the products turned out reached the enormous sum of $14,-802,147,087. Among the states New York leads in the amount of capital invested in manufacturing and also in the annual value of products. The year covered by the census report showed that the capital invested in manufacturing in the state of New York was $2,031,459,515, and the value of its manufactured products, $2,488,-345,579. Pennsylvania stands second in rank, Illinois third and Massachusetts fourth. It is interesting to note that the value of the manufactures in the United States for the year 1905 was more than a billion dollars greater than the combined manufactures of the three greatest European manufacturing countries during the year 870. 1900, the latest reliable reports from these countries obtainable. In 1900 the United Kingdom, Germany and France produced manufactured articles to the value of $13,030,000,000 During the past year-1907-it is estimated that the value of American manufactures was approximately $15,-000.000.000

Manufacturing in the United States s mainly confined to a territory which includes the area north of the Potomae and Ohio, and east of the Mississippi river, commonly designated as the New England and Middle states, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. Yet every state in the union has its manufacturing plants, and the south is making much headway in cotton and lumber manufacturing, the western states in flour and cereal products, in lumber and in iron and steel, and a little progress in other lines. One of the noticeable things about manufacturing districts is that though but ask in all humility and sincerity, the soil in contiguous country be poor, Since the Holy Spirit thus uses His it is of greater value than like areas own word to accomplish the work He in the rich agricultural districts, owmade before the Fiftieth congress, A. Crutcher, Attorney. Hon. William McKinley, our martyred president, said: "The establishment of a furnace or factory or mill in any neighborhood has the effect at once of enhancing the value of all property ing it.'

Mr. McKinley spoke a truth that should impress itself firmly upon the minds of all good citizens who would see their home place prosper. Wherever there are people there must be a means afforded them to obtain a must be either commerce or manufacturing in order that the town exist. Improvement of the town means enhancement of the farm lands surrounding it.

In the west manufacturing is now only in swaddling clothes. It is no exaggeration to say that nine-tenths of all manufactured articles needed by the people of the great agricultural sections of the west come from other than home factories. There are numerous lines of manufacturing that can never be successfully carried on in some sections of the agricultural United States. There are many other lines for which the west is particularly adapted, and there is no economic reason why these lines should not be manufactured at least in suf-Every citizen should assist his

Grown-Up Children.

It is not only the frivolous whom the spirit of childishness is just now leading astray. Silliness is the fashion even among the wise. Women especially affect a kind of childish shrewdness in talking of serious subjects. Like children who have the habit of romancing, they lose the sense of reality, and because they never talk exactly as they think they begin to think exactly as they talk.-London Spectator.

A good syrup for the hot cakes in winter is made as follows. If you see this before the wife does, tell her about it: To one cupful of sugar, graulated or brown, but preferably the atter, take a half cupful of cold waler. Put into a glass jar a day or so before the syrup is needed for use, and stir it occasionally with a spoon. If the cover is tight, it may be shaken instead. A little vanilla may be added if it is liked for a change. This is much less work than the old cooking process, tastes just as well, and does not "go back to sugar."

The growing of nut trees is increasing in favor. You ought to have a few on your farm. There is an increasing demand for nuts of all kinds from the cocoanut down. This increase is due in the main to two causes, namely, a better appreciation of their appetizing qualities and the numerous ways in which they form a palatable addition to the diet of the average family, and, secondly, to their use by the vegetarians and persons of similar belief-a group small in proportion to the total population, but still fairly large numerically-who use nuts and more particularly the peanut, as a substitute for meat and other nitrogenous and fatty foods.

Here is a story about a goose which goes to prove that the goose is not always as much of a goose as some folks are disposed to think. It was printed in the Farm Journal. Whether it is vouched for by that paper as the truth, and not a nature-fake story, we are not able to say. But here is the story: "A man who drives to town almost daily with a light spring wagon ran over a goose in the road, the front wheel going over the middle of his neck. Just as the goose had his head at the right point the second wheel went over that. The driver looked back to see a dead goose, but he was standing straight up, with blood running off his head, looking after the buggy in a rather discomfited manner. The goose evidently came to the conclusion that he had been wronged, and planned a revenge. The second evening after the accident, the goose, lying in wait in a fence corcame forth, and flew at the horse, utting up a strong fight."

> Scours in calves fed on skim milk is caused by indigestion brought on, as a rule, by over-feeding, but also by feeding skim-milk in poor condition and from dirty pails. Every feeder of skim-milk to calves must sooner or later learn this lesson. He must learn that if the calf has the scours the feeder is not doing his work right. In the case of scours, reform your system of feeding instead of purchasing the many remedies advertised, and in dairy farming one of the important qualifications is the learning not only of making but saving money.

SPAN OF LIFE.

Dr. Fisher Urges Insurance Companies to Educate People in Hygienic Conditions for This Purpose.

New York.—The span of human life may be increased one-third by the application of reforms now known to modern hygiene.

The statement was made the other day by Dr. Irving Fisher, professor of political economy at Yale and presion national health.

of money by life insurance companies in a campaign of education to improve hygienic conditions throughout the United States. He gave as his justification for this suggestion the fact that practical applicatioon of all the reforms now known to modern hygiene would increase the average length of life in America more than It will be controlled by a superinten-15 years-or over one-third.

This decreased mortality, he said, would so lessen the cost of insurance that the returns to policyholders would be many times more than the original expenditure. Then, too, there would be a vast economic gain to the prolongation of the lives of trained, mer last week. efficient men.

LEAD THE IDEAL SIMPLE LIFE.

Finns Devote Summer Months to Enjoyment and Pursuit of Health.

In Finland everybody lives the simple life in summer time. They camp out on islands, in the forests and always somewhere near the water, for everybody swims and bathes. Almost all classes sleep and eat al fresco at cils of the towns in this progressive and altogether delightful little country provide public fireplaces and public bathing sheds in all places where the working classes go in search of fresh

But the simple life is by no means dull with the frisky Finns. They combine it with a surprising amount of gayety. They eat, drink and are merry in their picturesque little log cabins outside the cities.

When they are tired of bathing and splashing they dance, they sing, they watch fireworks and practice gymnastics, they all become like children and are the happiest, merriest, most good natured, most easily pleased and most healthy holiday makers in the world. We might take many leaves from the Finns' book.-Ladies' Pictorial.

Fools.

What do you suppose fools were made for? That you might tread upon them, and starve them, and get the better of them in every possible way? By no means. They were made that wise people might take care of them. That is the true and plain fact concerning the relations of every strong and wise man to the world about him. He has his strength given him, not that he may crush the weak, but that he may support and guide them. In his own household he is to be the guide and support of his children; out of his household he is still to be the father, that is, the guide and support of the weak and the poor; not merely of the meritoriously weak and the innocently poor, but of the guilty and punishably poor; of the men who ought to have known better; of the poor who ought to be ashamed of themselves .- John Ruskin.

Children Set to Destroy Moths. In the rural districts of Saxony children were given a free day from school last summer so that they might gather moths of a species destructive to trees, for which they were given a couple of cents for every 100 caught.

Stephenson Forwards Result of Sep-

Madison, Wis., Feb. 27.-District Attorney W. G. Wheeler left for Washington, having in his possession a certificate signed by Governor Davidson of the vote in the senate and assembly on Jan 26, electing Isaac C. Stephenson United States senator. The certificate of election was countersigned by the secretary of state, James A. Frear, and the state seal was placed thereon. The separate ballot gave Stephenson 60 votes in the assembly, a clear majority, and 12 of the 16 votes cast in the senate, 16 senators being present and voting "present."

John Strange, who presides over the joint assembly when a ballot for United States senator is taken, has steadfastly refused from time to time to entertain a motion that Stephenson was elected on separate ballot, each time ruling the motion out of order and ordering the clerk to call the roll. Since the balloting in joint session began Serator Stephenson has failed to obtain a majority.

DEBATE WAXED WARM

House Finally Passes Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill.

Washington, Feb. 27.-After having dragged along for a week, the sundry civil appropriation bill, carrying in the aggregate $137,000,000, was passed by the house with numerous material amendments. The debate or the measure at times waxed warm. This was especially so when Messrs. Bartlett (Ga.) and Hitchcock (Neb.) offered amendments which, had they been adopted, would have forced the attorney general to prosecute the United States Steel corporation for absorbing the Tennessee Coal and Iron company, on the ground that the merger was in violation of the antitrust law.

A rule brought in by Mr. Dalzell (Pa.) making it in order for a majority to pass a bill under suspension of the rules, instead of two-thirds, aroused the Democats, under the leadership of Mr. Williams (Miss.) to the point of severe criticism of the appropriation committee in not affording, as was charged, more time to study supply bills before they were taken up. This led to an incipient filibuster, in requiring several rollcalls before the way was clear for other business.

But why squabble and fight now? The whole field is open to them. All of the fences are down. There is not now. I believe, a single honest occupation by which a living can be earned which is not open to a capable, decent woman to try for it. Men give her a fair field and much favor. Whether she chooses to drive a garbage cart or write a historic novel, they invariably are kinder to her endeavors and applaud her more loudly than if she were a man.

Why, then, this incessant, deflant assertion of woman's achievements and possibilities?

This constant noisy boasting seems to be akin to the loud cackling in the tain wage and at the end of our talk barnyard of a hen over each new-laid egg, as if an egg never had been laid

It is not true. There is not a fiber in her body nor an impulse in her nature which does not show that the real primary business in life is to be a home-maker, the comrade of a man and the mother of his children.

God in His wisdom may have denied her that highest and best work, but whatever else she may do she knows in her heart that it is the highest and the best.

A "southern woman" the other day rated her sisters of the south sharply because they "took it for granted that no woman is a wage-earner except from necessity and that when the necessity is removed she would gladly return to her old vocation-that of the lily of the field." And why not?

One Advocates Government Park Where Despondent Can Die.

New York.-Abraham London, who was a philosopher if he was nothing else in this life, left the following bits and musings among other writings before ending his life by inhaling gas. In his little room in West Twentyfourth street he wrote much and when his body was found it was apparent he had thought long and carefully about his death. Here are a few strange excerpts from his writings:

"I am lonely and despondent. I am tired wandering around the roaring streets of New York. The only hope is to find rest in another world. I wish no ceremonies over my body. I want it burned. Do with the ashes as you please. Throw them back to the earth from which they came.

"It is a man's duty to help nature to kill off all those who cannot fight against human beasts.

"I can't quite understand why the Divine Power allows cripples to live. "The United States ought to have a large crematory and have the bodies of all those who die burned and should also establish a large park where those who are despondent can go to end their lives."

-MAKING A GOOD ROAD

Ground on Which It is to Be Built Must Be Drained.

That of Finished Highways Should to Grade-Materials to Use.

Today a good road must be surveyed. It must circle or wind its way up hills follow the primitive settler's path or the track of his cow. It must avoid creeks and swamps, and everywhere its grade should be foreseen with nearly as much care as is used on a rail-weakest link, just so the greatest load are brittle. Most kinds of granite are which can be hauled over a road is the load which can be hauled through the deepest mudhole or up the steepest hill on that road. The cost of haulage is therefore necessarily increased in proor the steepness of the grade. This cost may easily be reckoned directly in time, loss of temper and wear and facing. tear on the horse. Indirectly it amounts to tens of thousands of dollars.

cumstances, but the fundamental requirement is side ditches. These, being lower than the bed of the road, receive the water from its surface as well as from its body.

Op hills no "thank-you-ma'ams" or ks or hummocks should be conicted, but instead the road should sloped so that the water will run the side channels or, if necessary, led to them by broad, shallow litches cut diagonally across. Underground culverts from the uphill to the are so easy to maintain in perfect condownhill side of the road should be built at frequent intervals.

If the highway is through low or springy land subdrainage as well as surface drainage is an absolute necessity. Dry roadbeds are as essential for good roads as dry powder for successful fighting. If water is allowed to get at the foundation of the road it periments to find a substitute. undermines, freezes and eventually loosens the soil. Everybody who has floundered hub high through spring mud knows that this is only too true. Subdrains are in the end inexpensive. They may be constructed of field some, of logs or fagots of wood or bundles of brush, of brick or, best of all, of tile and stone.

The general shape of all roadbeds. as well as of all finished highways, should be in cross section, a shallow curve or else a shallow truncated cone. In this respect, as well as in regard to drainage, lies the superiority of the modern over the Roman road. The aim today is to build a hard, smooth, well graded and well drained, waterproof and compact pavement on which wheeled vehicles may travel in safety and with speed. One inch to the foot Is a successful curve.

The preliminary grading, after the stumps and large stones have been removed and the general "smoothing" has been done, is accomplished by means of the road machine, which may be adjusted so as to spread the earth, shave it away at the desired angles and roughly whittle the bed to the required form. By it also the side ditches are partly dug out. A road thus "crowned." or rounded off, even if nothing more is done to it, will give better service than its old, flat, undrained prevecessor.

The next step is to roll the road with a heavy steam or horse roller till the surface is firm and hard. This process is slow and expensive, but if we would keep the water from seeping through and prevent wasteful ruts and washouts it must be done. In some country districts where the appropriation is scant traffic is now admitted, and, although this earth road is the least permanent highway made, yet it is incomparably better than the briner unimproved, wet and ungraded wagon track. Constant stight repairs will maintain such a road in good sign of wear. It is made with small shape indefinitely.

In the stone road the process as far as it goes is exactly the same. The roadbed must be surveyed, graded, drained, shaped and rolled. In general, two kinds of stone road are in use, the macadam and the telford. SHAPING IS MOST IMPORTANT named from the two Scotchmen who No. 27, Daily Ex. It should not cement this mass water and stone screenings, but never earth or clay, are rolled into the surface.

The qualities required of gravel to be available for constructing a macadam or a telford road are, above all, hardness and toughness. Stones containing flint or quartz, for instance, As a chain is no stronger than its are bad, because, although hard, they undesirable, since they decompose rapidly, but the darker one, containing hornblende instead of feldspar, are better. Once a channel is started destruction is sure to follow. A wheel rut cutting into an unforeseen soft spot or a patch of loosened stones may if unmended be the beginning of hundreds of dollars of waste. Nothing deteriorates so rapidly as a neglected road, and few things dition if slight continual painstaking inspection is allowed to rule.

In some southern states, especially those in the valleys of the Mississippi and its tributaries, burnt clay roads have been used. The process is simple. The clay roadbed is plowed up and roasted over open wood fires, much as bricks are baked. The "gumbo" or "buckshot" thus loses a good deal of its water and when mixed with uncooked clay and then thoroughly rolled forms a smooth and durable surface.-William Leavitt Stoddard in Youth's n Improvement Suggested Use of Motor Cars.

ASPHALT IN ROCK ROADS.

States that are considering good roads are likely to be interested in the suggestions r cently made in Washington by Auzi L. Barber, who has spent his life in the asphalt business. If it is at all feasible it would apply chiefly in thickly settled districts, and especially in the vicinity of cities, where motor cars, as in Jackson county, Mo., are beginning to wear out the highways.

Macadam has not stood up under the tremendous grinding of the heavy, high speed cars, and the Massachusetts highway commission and the federal government are conducting ex-

Mr. Barber's suggestion, made at the annual meeting of the Independent Asphalt association in Washington, is that the problem could be solved by laying a strip of asphalt in the middle of a macadam road. Taking the average cost of making a sixteen foot macadam roadway at $10,000 a mile, Mr. Barber estimated the total cost of a sixteen foot road with a six foot strip of asphalt in the middle at about $13,-000 a mile, an increase of 30 per cent.

"Horses can be driven on the macadam, as now, if desired." Mr. Barber said. "Motor cars when the road is clear will have an ideal surface in the middle, equal to a billiard table, with no ruts or lumps to look out for. When the cars meet they may slow down and turn out so as to run upon the macadam only on one side and for a few feet, and when rain first falls on the asphalt, making it slippery, they can run with one side on the pavement and one side on the macadam to avoid skidding. When on the strip of pavement in the middle they will cause neither dust nor wear.

"Finally, and if no other advantage were to be gained, farmers can haul on' the asphalt more than double the load that they can haul on macadam. This consideration alone should decide the matter in favor of the asphalt strip."

Mr. Barber expressed the opinion that the federal government ought to appropriate $20,000,000 a year for roads, to be apportioned to states providing three times the amount re-

New System of Roadmaking. A new system of roadmaking which, it is claimed, will stand the wear and tear of heavy traffic, such as motor wagons, and be virtually dustless is to be tried on a more extended scale by the Lancashire county council in England. It has already been tested on short lengths of road, and after four years' hard use the road shows no granite sets, three and a balf to three and three-quarter inches, laid in intersecting circles. This method of paving is said to be much more economical than paving with ordinary granlength of main road between Accring-
